Wellbeing policy: Distance Learning

The Wellbeing Policy Statement and Framework for Practice sets out the School's ambition and vision for wellbeing promotion, building on strong community feeling among the stakeholders.

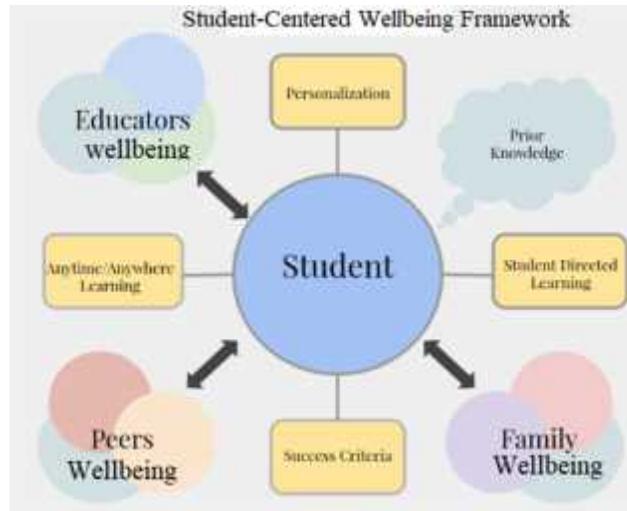

Children and young people become independent learners if they are happy in their work, believe in themselves and feel acknowledged and supported in the school. Wellbeing practice is an ongoing process that will ensure the necessary focus on supporting children and young people in having a sense of purpose and fulfillment, and the skills necessary to deal with life's challenges.

Definition of Wellbeing: when a person realizes their potential, is resilient in dealing with the normal stressors of their life, takes care of their physical wellbeing and has a sense of purpose, connection and belonging to a wider community. It is a fluid way of being and needs nurturing throughout life is defined as wellbeing.

The Principles of the Framework:

Child/parent/teacher-centered: The wellbeing needs and the best interests of our children and parents and teachers are a central focus of this policy. This requires us to respect and value the child centered focus to foster their belonging and connectedness to the school community. This ensures a sound developmental base for present and future wellbeing, as well as academic achievement.

Equitable, fair and inclusive: All children with their significant others (parents and teachers) need access to equitable, fair and inclusive opportunities to develop their wellbeing in ways that are responsive and suitable to their particular needs and contexts. This means that practices will vary across schools and centres for education and from student to student.

Opportunity in disguise of challenges:

Distance Learning Education has provided us an opportunity in disguise of challenge. Credit goes to the technology pioneers and their advancements, now teachers are able to meet the parents and students in their natural environment.

Engaging the student at home also means engaging parent at home. The frequency of meeting have increased and now school is knowing more about the feeling of the home. This connectedness has led to welcoming the teacher in every home.

The teacher now has become a family member in the home. Parents are reaching out to teachers not just for reviewing the academics of their child but also to know more about the teacher.

This has amalgamated the school-parent-student naturally.

Plan to execute the framework

Programs involving parents:

1. Talent search in parents: to promote wellbeing vision. The school will search for latent talents in the parents which can be shared with the students. For e.g., a parent might have talent in poetry, arts, physical activity. The school will arrange a schedule and bring the parent to the students to exercise their talent and share and teach the same to our students.
2. Involving in social debates: The school will engage parents in MEP/Islamic studies class to have religious/moral conduct discussions.
3. Promoting Arabic: Conducting Arabic Classes for the parents

Programs involving Teachers:

1. Talent Search in Teachers: Teachers will showcase their hidden talents in arts, do it yourself (DIY), teaching new platforms on software to other teachers (e.g., advanced excel techniques, using google forms) which will help the teacher community have peer-peer interaction and sense of belongingness.
2. Planning extra-curricular activities in which students are also involved.
3. Senior grade teachers visit KG sections and helping out teachers in KG sections during free periods.

Programs involving Students:
